BIG DAY'S WORK IN ALBANY.

THE FREEDOM OF WORSHIP BILL KILLED IN THE ASSEMBLY.

A Batch of Vetoes from the Governor-The Albany Water Bill Passed with Only One bissenting Vote-Weed's East River Bridge Bill Defeated in the Assembly-A Lot of Local Bills Passed or Progressed.

ALBANY, April 6.-Under the new rule, which permits the Committee on Rules to make up special calandar for the day, the General inilroad bill, the Stock Corporation bill, the Preedom of Worship bill, and the Albany Water were advanced to the head of this morning's calendar, and the Constitutional Convention bill was made a special order for tomorrow. Notwithstanding the friendly action of the Committee on Rules, the Freedom of Worship bill was virtually beaten by successive amendments, which ended in its recommittal and loss of a place on the preferred

Mr. Dayo offered an amendment striking out the provision authorizing the State Board of Supervision to regulate religious services in all institutions to which State money is paid. Mr. Dayo said that the bill would require the State to furnish baptistries for Baptists, animals for the proper observation of certain re-ligious rights, altars, and whatever eise any inmate or convict might deem necessary for the worship of his faith. He thought that it was no business of the State to do these things, and that the State should leave religion alone. The amendment was adopted-58 to 47. Six Democrats voted with the Republicans.

tien. Husted said that he was opposed to the bill under any circumstances and no matter what amendments were made. "It is an un-American bill." he said. "It is not the State's business to enforce any form of worship on anybody. I believe the Church and the State should be kept apart, and that religious bills should be kept out of the Legislature. State interference with religion never did any

Mr. Conncily said that the object of the bill was to permit the observance of the ceremonies of the Catholic Church in the House of Refuge on Randail's Island. The Catholic Church demanded this as a right.

Mr. Devo offered a system of State reports from all institutions receiving State money instead of the proposed supervision by the State officials under the original bill. This amendment was adopted by a vote of 63 to 50. That practically killed the bill, and it was recommitted to the Judiciary Committee for repairs. The Huckleberry Raitroad bill came to the Assembly from the Senate and was referred to the Committee on Railroads.

Mr. Malone of Brooklyn tried to get in a motion to discharge the committee from further consideration of his telephone bill and to get the bill before the house. The Speaker would not recognize him to make the motion, and raided that special orders had precedence.

Gov. Flower sent a batch of vetoes to the Legislature. Three of the vetoes are of appropriations of public money for local improvements. The Governor says:

"All appropriations not immediately imperative, for economy's sake, should be deferred to another year. I do not think the people of the State will approve lavish appropriation for the benefit only of particular localities. It is the people's money which is thus voted away, and the same careful scrutiny should characterize its distribution as we as individuals would apply to the disposition of funds which we hold in trust for others."

The Governor also put in a veto of the Yonker's Election Expense bill on the ground that a general election amendment should be passed instead of annual special legislation.

The Assembly passed the Albany Water bill by a vote of 102 to 1. The only opposition came from Mr. Ward, the Republican Assemblyman from Albany power to appoint Water Commissioners. Mr. Ward made as speech attacking the bill in which he said:

"This bill legislates out of office a Board of men of the highest character. Its object is to give the young man in the May named in the bill."

"You propose to legislate out of the Commission the managers of the concern who are going to put their money in it," said Mr. Weed.

"That is a great confession for you to make," said Mr. O'Connor. "You admit that the men named in this bill as Commissioners are going to grant this great franchise to themselves."

the men named in this bill as Commissioners are going to grant this great franchise to themselves.

"This is the most notorious steal of the season of 1802," said Mr. Connoily, "It is a coliosal scheme with no merit whatever."

"This is a job got up by Charley Swan and Judge Green, together with Andrew H. Green and other professional franchise peddiers." repeated Mr. O'Connor.

No one spoke for the bill except its introducer and Mr. Weeks of Long Island City, who said that Long Island City wanted the bridge, and was in favor of any bill that was likely to bring about the building of a bridge from New York, in the neighborhood of the Grand Central station, to Long Island City, they. Flower signed the Columbia College bill to permit the closing of the streets through the Bloomingdale Asylum property.

The Senate passed the bill to establish a State printing office by a vote of 18 to 0; also the bills to repave cobble-paved streets in brooklyn; to permit the use of sand on street car tracks; to extend the time for the completion of the New York and Westchester lailroad; to create a board of excise commissioners on Staten Island; to improve the Riverside drive; to remove the railroads from Broax Park, the statutory corporation bill.

The Medianus bill providing for an evening high school in the Twenty-second ward, and the Sulzer bill to provide for a $50,000 celebration in New York city of the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, passed the Senate, and are now in the hands of the Governor.

Senator Ahearn introduced a bill to permit the Board of Estimate in New York to make up deflecencies in the police pension funds.

The Assembly passed the bill to create a senator becarting to the first plant in the Senate.

The Insurance Codification bill was favorably reported in the Senate.

The Assenbly passed the bill to create a separate Department of Buildings in the city of New York and to consolidate in that department the supervision of pians of buildings, which are now controlled by the Fire Department and the Board of Health. Thomas J. Brady, present Superintendent of the Bureau of Buildings and the Fire Department, is to be in charge of the new Department of Buildings.

The Senate, by a vote of 24 to 4 passed the Yomen's Christian Temperance Union bill to prohibit the employment of barmaids. Senator Settlelland said that the bill was unconstitutional as the Legislature had no right to regulate the lawful occupations of adult women. Senator McCarren thought that the bill should be amended to provide only that women selling honor should wear drosses covering their whole persons. Senator Zerubabel Erwin, who is an experienced foreign travellor and knows all about such things, told Senator McCarren that in Europe the barmaids were always plainly and decently dressed.

The bill for a ship canal around Niagara Falis was reported favorably in the Senate.

The afternoon session of the Assembly began with another disturbance. The Speaker handed down the resolution of the Senate asking for the recall of the Congressional Apportionment bill. A motion to cone ur was declared lost. The Speaker refused to retract, Gen. Husted, though he had voted with the minority, moved to reconsider. George H. Husted at the thing the point of order that Gen. Husted could not move a reconsideration. The point was decided to be well taken. Gen. Husted abhealed from the decision. The appeal was laid on the table. The Baid Fagle fluttered to his sent after this rebuil and the third reading calendar was taken up. to be interrupted only by the passage of the Buffallo Grade Crossing bill, which the Eric county Assemblymen had insisted upon as a second condition of the the Walker bill to allow morgues and hospitals to deliver bodies to medical colleges for dissection; the O'Dair inspection and poll clerk amendment; the Quigley bill to limit hours of labor on street surface railways to ten, and the Goldberg bill to restrict hypnotic exhibitions and the practice of hypnotism to licensed physicians.

The Committee on Gas, Electricity, and Water held a secret meeting this afternoon, and discussed the Malone Telephone Commission bill. Nothing definite was decided, except that a meeting would be held to-morrow, at which final action will be taken.

THE MAYNARD INQUIRY.

Proof as to Fraud at the Polls Ruled Out-

ALBANY, April 6.-The Maynard investigaon was resumed this afternoon. None of the Assembly members was present, because of bill. Jarvis Knitten of Dutchess was placed on the stand, and was first asked as to his voting, and how he had been approached by Re-publicans to vote marked ballots. Mr. O'Con-

Mr. Ridgway said that it was proposed to show that in Dutchess county there were two returns, one of which was added to by votes llegally taken, and that other legal votes were thrown out, and that the proof they wished to show was that Republicans offered the witness show was that Republicans offered the witness paster ballots, which were to be east, and then thrown out at the counting.

Mr. Mullin—What has that to do with Judge Maynard abstracting the returns?

Mr. Ridgway—It has this to do with it: that it shows original fraud, and that any act to controvert it was right.

The committee voted against admitting the testimony, the Chairman, Mr. Roesch, voting with the Republicans.

Mr. Cantor sarcastically observed that he always supposed the Republicans would refuse to hear this testimony and would bar it out.

Mr. O'Connor.—That's a reflection on the Chairman, and I want to say that he is a more faithful lawyer than he is a politician.

Mr. Cantor.—That's because he voted with you.

The witness weavened as west to the action the same of the same of

The witness was excused, as were ten others who were all called on the same ground. Mr. Ridgway said they had offered to show how the ballott law could be evaded and that thirty-one ballots had been marked and distributed.

thirty-one bailots had been marked and distributed.

County Clork Storm Emons was then called. He presented the official returns of the canvass in the disputed districts and they were put in evidence. An order was shown him at U.P. M. on Dec. 21 by Judge Cullen ordering him to forward the returns. The office closed according to statute at 5 o'clock. Mr. Cossum told him that the order meant that he was to forward the roturns at once. He inquired whether notice of a restraining order would aid him in keeping them and Mr. Cossum had said it would. Later, but after he had mailed the returns, he was served with a restraining order. He came to Albany and went to the Executive Mansion. By advice of Gov. Hill he went to Judge Maynard as counsol and consulted him. He was not acquainted with anybody in the Comptroller's office, and so gave Judge Maynard, who was acquainted, power to go to the office and got the papers. Judge Maynard did so and returned them to him unopened and just as they had been mailed. Mr. Cossum threatened him with dire consequences if he did not obey the order and mail the returns.

The committee then took a recess until 3:30 P. M. to-morrow.

THE REVOLT IN VENEZUELA.

Majority of Congress Joins the Revolu-tionists—A Decisive Battle Expected.

PANAMA, April 6.-The latest advices from Venezuela say that the revolt is spreading, and that the majority of the members of Congress who have been able to escape from Caracas are with Gen. Crespo. The revoluionists assert that Palacio is secretly preparing for defeat by sending abroad a considerable portion of the money he has seized from the banks, and that when driven out of Venezuela, as he probably will be, he will have a large fortune to maintain him in exile.

Meantime Palacio appears to be preparing for a severe struggle, and is impressing overy able-bodied citizen into the ranks. The revolutionists and their friends assert that there is no truth in the report of an attempt to assassinate Palacio. They say that Palacio himself originated the story as an excuse for additional severities, and for arresting on suspicion a number of those opposed to him.

Palacio's chief reliance is in Gen. Cassnas, who has some military ability and experience, and is the only man on the President's side capable of coping with Gen. Crespo. Casanas has indomitable courage and arrogance, and will not be likely to yield while a chahee for success remains. He is feared for his merciless discipline, and while this causes many descritions, it also keeps the troops who remain with him obedient to discipline. A decisive battle is looked for very soon.

Boston, April C .- The arrest to-day in this city of a man of fifty-seven and a boy of eighteen, who were trying to dispose of two railroad bonds valued at $2,000, has led to the discovery of a $22,000 robbery in Mansfield, ing a miser named George M. Babbitt. The boy was G. V. Seward, a grandson of the man he robbed.

The other prisoner is John W. Grant, a liquor dealer of Great Falls, N. H. Old Mr. Babbitt had been in the habit of hiding bonds, coins, and bank notes in various nooks and crannies of his house in Mansfield. It was a veritable treasure house.

He is known to be worth more than $50,000, and it is thought that the whole sum must he stowed away somewhere in the house. One batch of $22,000 in bonds had been hidden under a barrel in the wood shed.

Young Seward had been living with his grandlather, and always seemed to have plenty of money, although he did not work and had no means of support. It is not yet known just what connection Grant had with the robbery, but he had one of the stolen bonds in his possession when arrested.

Young Seward says that his father, who lives in Cranford, N. J. has $20,000 of the bonds. The father left Mansfield for New Jersey on Monday night. The miset says he didn't know much money he had hidden. of his house in Mansfield. It was a veritable by a vote of 12 to 7. Miss Mary C. O'Brien was made principal of the primary department of Grammar School No. 2. Miss Anna L. Johnson was a candidate for the post. Commissioner Girard introduced a resolution requiring teachers to be residents of the State. Ten Commissioners voted for it, and nine against it. Hecause it hadn't a two-thirds vote it was defeated.

Commissioner Crosby introduced a resolution that a special committee of three be appointed to report in what way the course of studies in the grammar schools may be so changed and simplified as to secure to the publis a better knowledge of the English branches. Commissioner Crosby explained that he had found that 875 of 1.000 publis last year had received less than 75 per cent. in English grammar, 400 of 1,000 less than that percentage in geography, and 350 of 1,000 in the History of the United States. The resolution was laid over until the next meeting.

Ran Away from Troy to Join the Circus.

James Whalon, a 13-year-old boy, living at 121 Adams street. Troy, came to this city by means of freight trains for the purpose of see ing and taking part in the circus now at Madison Square Garden. He got here on Tuesday son Square Garden. He got here on Tuesday afternoon, and on applying for employment was much disappointed to learn that the show wasn't in need of an apprentice to learn elephant training, and that little boys who could turn three somersaults backward without stopping to breathe were a glut on the market. So James, having no money, hung about the gates until 3 o'clock yesterday moraing, when a citizen found him asleep and took him to the Gerry society headquarters. At Jefferson Market Court yesterday the boy was turned over to the care of the Gerry society.

Persuaded Him His Bank Would Break, Dominico Patuno, an Italian fruit dealer at 634 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, was buncoed yesterday to the extent of $400 by two of his fellow countrymen, each of whom is described as stout, well dressed, and swarthy.

The strangers persuaded him that a bank in which he had $400 was unsafe, and he drew it out. Then one of them agreed to take board with him. When this was arranged he threw what appeared to be a bundle of money into a valise and told Patuno to put his $400 in also and to carry the valise home.

Patuno handed his money to the stranger, and he thought it went into the valise, which the stranger locked, and then put the key in his pocket. Patuno broke the valise open last night and found he had been robbed.

ANOTHER BREAK IN ALBANY. SENATORS BROWN AND WALKER FOIE WITH THE REPUBLICANS.

They are Displeased at a Published Interview with Senator Hill Which, They Say, Made Reflections on Them-They Vote for a Resolution Recalling the Congress Apportionment Bill from the Assembly,

ALBANT, April 6 .- No sooner had the break of the Democratic members of the Legislature over the Albany bills been fixed up by Senator Hill's mediation than another break came on the Congress Apportionment bill. Col. Wil-Charles E. Walker of Corning tried to reconsider the Apportionment will this morning on the ground that Senator Hill in an interview had made reflections on them. This interview was printed in the Brooklyn Eagle, and among other things it says:

We are trying to get the Legislature to do something It has been frittering frittering frittering all winter, and it is time that something was done. We have got to do it quick, too, for we do not know when some Assemblyman may die or fall sick. Something of that kind happens nearly every year, and I have been ex-etting the important party measures wait. Each man has his strike-I don't mean a strike for money, but s strike for his particular district—and does not seem to care for anything else. The Congressional Reapportion-ment bill ought to have been pushed through early in the session. Gov. Flower should use the power which he has. These little local bills come before him and he has power to get the party measures through before the other bills are considered.

The delay has increased the feeling of independence of late, and its prevalence is due largely, I think, to the attitude of the last national Democratic Administra tion. Some Senators are getting so independent that they will not promise to support party measures. They say that they do not propose to be delivered by any one but will vote as they see fit. When they take this stand are getting vain because of the reputation for inde pendence, and the correspondents increase their van-ity. The correspondents of the Republican papers are lobbyists for their party.

Senators Brown and Walker told the Republican Senators that they were willing to vote for the reconsideration of the Apportionment night, and that when the bill was reconsidered they would vote to restore it to its original shape and strike out the changes in the St. Lawrence and Clinton districts. These changes were made to oblige Smith M. Weed, whose Assemblyman, Edward Hall, said he would not vote for the bill if Clinton county was put in the same district with St. Lawrence. The districts are Republican, anyhow, and the change makes no political difference. except that it obliges Mr. Weed in the matter of the State Committeemen from the district. If the county of Clinton were put with St. Lawrence, St. Lawrence being the bigger county would take the committeemen.

Senator O'Connor, a Republican, after he had the assurance of the support of Senators Walker and Brown, moved to reconsider the vote on the Congress Apportionment bill. The Lieutenant-Governor said that the bill had already been sent to the Assembly, and it was too late to reconsider the vote. The vote on the question of reconsideration was antake, as the Republicans, together with Sena tors Edwards, Walker, and Brown, cast 17 votes. After some delay the mistake was cor

An appeal was taken from the Lieutenant-Governor's decision that it was too late to reconsider the bill. The appeal prevailed by the same vote, 17 to 15. Then the Senate by the same vote passed a resolution recalling the bill from the Assembly.

"I trust that resolution will be sent at once to the Assembly," said Senator Erwin.

"The Clerk and the Chair will take care of that," said the Lieutenant-Govornor; "but I can tell you that the bill will not come back from the Assembly."

Senator Hill is in Albany, where he came to fix up the break. He succeeded in this on Monday, and under the peace then established the Albany Water bill was passed this morning and the Congress Apportionment bill was passed last night. He was surprised when he heard of the actions of Senators Brown and Walker this morning. Interviews with both the Senators, which had been revised by them, were read to Senator Hill, and he was asked whether he had used for publication the expressions attributed to him in the Brooklyn Eagle. In reply Senator Hill said:

"The interview is inaccurate in a great many respects. I did speak in the presence of several reporters, though not as an interview, of the difficulties the Democrats here were laboring under in passing their political bills. I mentioned no names. It is immaterial to me or to the Democratic party how Republican districts are arranged, so long several reporters, though not as an interview, of the difficulties the Democratis here were laboring under in passing their political bills. I mentioned no names. It is immaterial to me or to the Democratic party how Republican districts are arranged, so long as they are to be Republican. We have to arrange them, however, to satisfy Democrats and to get Democratic votes in the Legislature."

Senator Walker said in an interview, which he revised:

"I took Senator Hill's interview as a personal affront. He is not the Governor of this State, and he should attend to his business in Washington. He has no right to criticise my actions. I have, as a citizen of New York, a right to criticise his, because he is not representing his constituents, and he is not representing the State in Washington, where he should be. I see he says the reapportionment of this State was fixed to please Congressman Burleigh, a Republican. I am a Democrat, first, last, and all the time, and I stand by the party. But when party measures are considered we are entitled to a caucus. In a Democratic apportionment bill Democrats should be consulted and not Republican Congressmen. This Legislature would run well enough if it were not for Senator Hill."

Senator Brown said in an interview which was afterward read to him:

"I regarded the original apportionment as a fair bill. I voted for the amended bill last night through misrepresentation. There is no good reason why the change should be made. I understand that Assemblyman Hall would not defeat it. And now I see it was changed to oblige two Republican Congressmen. Burleigh and Raines. Gov. Hill at one time had bright prospects for the Presidential nomination, but they have been hurt by the early Convention and his leaving his place of duty to manipulate affairs in this State for sellish purposes. If he is nominated for President I, of course, will give him my hearty support. He would give this courtry a great Administration, and it would be Democratic But I think he is weakening himself before the

Went Out to Kill the New Town Marchal. NASHVILLE, April 6.-A gang of toughs who have long terrorized the town authorities of Helenwood, near the Kentucky line, threatened to kill Sam Cowan, a candidate for town marshal, if he were elected. Last Saturday Cowan was elected, and this morning early nearly 100 men rode into town for Cowan. He learned their intention and was on his guard. Just before 10 o'clock the men began shooting on Main street. Cowan rushed out to stop them. He received a builet in his shoulder and another went through the ear. In return, he shot the leader through the head and fatally wounded three others.

This question was also ruled out.

"Did you ever publish yourself as a manufacturer of ballads, sonnets, and atrocious libels?"

"I did, humorously."

Mr. Wellman read an extract from a trade paper rival of Hammerstein's which described him as a "creature," viper" and a "mean and contemptible editor." The extract ended: "Down to the dust, and so thou rottest away: E'en worms shall perish on thy poisonous clay."

Questions on the extract were ruled out by the Court. When asked how often he had been arrested. Mr. Hammerstein said vehem-ently. "Only once," and when asked how often he had been in Ludlow street jail, he shouted: "Nover, never," ently. "Only once," and when asked how often he had been in Ludlow street jail, he shouted:

Ex-Judge Curtis tried to pacify his client, but Mr. Hammerstein said:
"Mr. Curtis, I am sorry if you don't like it, but I won't be insulted or buildozed by this fellow," pointing to Mr. Wellman.
"Why did you not complain to the Fire Commissioners if you believed the plaintiff was trying to get you to buy the Harkness fire extinguisher?" persisted Mr. Wellman.

"Because my experience was that a complaint against an individual antagonizes a whole department and does no good."
"You have an exalted idea of justice?" said Mr. Wellman in a reassuring tone.
"When a set of villians is before me I tell them what I think," shouted the witness.
"Do you want this jury to determine," asked Mr. Wellman at another stage, "whether Mr. Benner was trying to blackmail you?"
"If you construe these threats and demands into the word blackmail, I do," he replied.
Ex.Judge Curtis and Mr. Wellman had a little tilt, the latter observing that he had stood a good deal in the past few days. "You must remember, Mr. ex.Judge Curtis, that you live in a glass house, and unless you want me to throw stones you had better desist."

"I don't want any controversy with you," and Judge Curtis, but I shall do my duty."

Among the other witnesses was William Harkness, manufacturer of the fire extinguisher that bears his name. He testified that he had not informed Hammerstein that he might have difficulty in getting a license unloss he used the Harkness extinguishers in the Columbus Theatre.

McPhillips Drew a Jury of His Critics. When the petit jury for the April term of the Hudson county courts answered to their names at roll call yesterday the court was kept busy for nearly an hour listening to plea to be excused. The panel is composed of business men to whom jury duty is inconvenient and irksome. Sheriff McPhillips had been and irksome. Sheriff McPhillips had been criticised for drawing incompetent jurors, and he says he made up his mind to draw a jury of his critics. Fifty of the sixty men drawn begged to be excused, and gave a variety of reasons. Justice Werts said it would be impossible to excuse all of them as the courts could not transact business without juries. Three were excused for the term, twelve until sent for, and five until Monday. The others had to grin and bear it. They sat on the front benches and waited to be called upon to adjudicate upon clothosline fights and tenement-house rows.

Brazilian Minister Bring $22,580 The sale of Scahor Salvador de Mendonça's ollection of paintings at Chickering Hall last night was slimly attended and the bidding was slow. It took three hours to sell the seventy-seven pictures. The prices obtained will prove disappointing to the owner, who spent many years in making his collection.

A question was raised when the first picture was put up whother Sonhor Mendonca would guarantee the authenticity of the paintings, and a certain timidity was manifest which certainly should have been set at rest by the well-known reputation of the collector. The sale realized $22.580, The prices in some cases were ridiculously low. An earlier painting by Corot brought $120, Henner's Le Ropes went for $210. JUDGES TO SIT OVER WHEELS. Changes at Morris Park That Will Give Nearly two years ago, after the excitemen over the stirring contest for the Toboggan Slide Handicap at Morris Park had died away. t was shown plainly that Geraldine, on the extreme outside of the Eclipse Course, was obliged to run a considerable distance further than Fides, who, on the inner rail, was adjudged the winner. The race was one of the sensations of the season. The field was composed of the fleetest sprinters on the turf and the time was a new record, which stands to this day, 1:10%. The trouble was due to the single finishing line which was made to do duty for two tracks that did not lie in the same

John A. Morris, who always wants to be right in such matters, and usually thinks that he is, protested that Geraldine travelled the same distance as Fides and was fairly heaten, and, in order to prove the correctness of his assertion, gave orders that in the future his own horses, if placed on the outside at the starting post, should cling to the outer rail, instoad of cutting across the track to take what was certainly the shortest way home. St. Florian, the one-eyed champion of the

what was certainly the shortest way home. St. Florian, the one-eyed champion of the "all scarlet," was by these orders badly beaten in more than one race, and Correction, in the same manner, lost races which she otherwise might have won. The writer believes that Mr. Morris was finally convinced of his error, for not long afterward his horses were allowed to go to the inner rail whenever circumstances permitted. The finishing line, however, remained unchanged. It was at right angles to the main stretch, and, therefore, could not possibly be at right angles to the Eclipse Course. The public, with its customary indifference or good nature, submitted patiently while for two seasons the outside horse on the latter was at the morey of the favored antagonist on the rail.

Forsuaded finally of the injustice of the whole thing, the Mossrs. Morris have determined to correct the wrong. Hereafter there will be two linishing lines, one for the Eclipse course and one for the main stretch, each at right angles to its course. The arrangement, which is an English suggestion, cannot fail to give entire satisfaction. The little box in which Messrs. Simmons and McDowell sit in judgment has been stationary, but now is on wheels and rolls on a wooden railway up and down the stewards' enclosure a distance of twenty feet. When a finish is to be decided on the main stretch it occupies its former position. When the race is run over the Eclipse course it is rolled far enough up the track to make the finishing line there also a right angle, it is a simple and will be a successful and effective arrangement. It will please the racing public. The occupants of the grand stand, the spectators on the lawn, the people who sit in the club house—all can see that the box is in its proper place and that the finishing lines are right, whether they agree with the judges' decisions or not. There will be no turning down or turning up of white boards with vertical black lines painted thereon.
